

Improving and Reforming Regulatory Enforcement and Adjudication

Please click the link below to find information on the Federal Register regarding changes in Office of Management and Budget (OMB) procedures related to domestic terrorism rules. This has to do with bias and the lack of due process in previous (and current) applications of domestic terrorism statutes. Please comment and share this link with others you know who understand this issue. The new policy is titled Promoting the Rule of Law Through Transparency and Fairness in Civil Administrative Enforcement and Adjudication and does not mention domestic terrorism specifically, but when you read the proposed changes, you will understand.

SUMMARY: In furtherance of the policy on Promoting the Rule of Law Through Transparency and Fairness in Civil Administrative Enforcement and Adjudication, the Office of Management and Budget invites the public to identify additional reforms that will ensure adequate due process in regulatory enforcement and adjudication.

Comments are due on or before March 16, 2020

Improving and Reforming Regulatory Enforcement and Adjudication

A Notice by the Management and Budget Office on 01/30/2020

 This document has a comment period that ends in 20 days. (03/16/2020)

SUBMIT A FORMAL COMMENT