The Trump administration removed globalists and war hawks from the Defense Policy Board, an outside group of national security officials who give advice on defense policy, that includes Madeleine Albright, Henry Kissinger, Jane Harman and Eric Cantor. Madeleine Albright famously argued that killing 500,000 Iraqi children was a reasonable foreign-policy move when she was the Secretary of State under President Bill Clinton. Henry Kissinger is known for prolonging the Vietnam War.

The Trump administration removed globalists and warhawks from the Defense Policy Board on Wednesday including Madeleine Albright, Henry Kissinger, Jane Harman and Eric Cantor.

That was long overdue.

Madeleine Albright is famous for bribing the North Korean dictators with US cash in a failed peace agreement.

She also famously argued that killing 500,000 Iraqi children was a good foreign policy move.

Here is a much forgotten exchange between Lesley Stahl and Madeleine Albright on “60 Minutes” back on May 12, 1996 that is not getting much play lately:

Lesley Stahl on U.S. sanctions against Iraq: We have heard that a half million children have died. I mean, that’s more children than died in Hiroshima. And, you know, is the price worth it?

Secretary of State Madeleine Albright: I think this is a very hard choice, but the price—we think the price is worth it.
